

Mindfulness in the Therapeutic Encounter

Instructors: Carol Blum and Donald McCown

Date: Wednesday May 22, 2019 – July 10, 2019

Mindfulness, defined as paying attention, on purpose, in the present moment, without judgment, is being used in a growing range of psychotherapeutic interventions. This course offers a combination of experiential explorations of mindfulness practice and didactic content regarding the application of mindfulness in the therapeutic encounter. It balances two emphases: personal development as a mindfulness practitioner, and professional development through understanding the theory, empirical research base, and essential skill sets for application of mindfulness in the therapeutic setting. The first 15 instructional hours will support the cultivation of a personal mindfulness practice. Students will learn four formal practices — body scan, sitting meditation, moving meditation (yoga), and walking meditation — and will be guided in bringing mindfulness into everyday life through informal practice, as well. The second 15 instructional hours will shift the focus to applications of mindfulness in clinical contexts. Students will explore the historical and theoretical background of meditation in psychotherapy, get an overview of the evidence base supporting the mindfulness-based interventions, review the neurobiology of mindfulness practice in both intra-subjective and inter-subjective modes, and consider — explicitly — the applications of mindfulness in the therapeutic dyad and larger systems. Students will learn several mindfulness practices for immediate use with clients. Time will also be devoted to group supervision in the use of these practices
